

I'm a SWL living in a condo and use a magnetic loop. Local noise is already enough of a problem. The next thing I need is bypassed transformers allowing data and who knows what else picked up by power lines along the way, raising the noise floor of my receiver.